Idris Khan receives the OBE from the Prince of Wales at Buckingham Palace

Welcome an OBE artist

Next week, London-based artist Idris Khan travels to Mumbai with his latest works for a month-long show titled, Re-Imaginations, at Fort's Galerie Isa. It was just last week that Khan, who has been acclaimed for his large-scale and layered works (paintings, photographs, sculptures), was awarded the prestigious OBE (Order of the British Empire) medal from the Royal Family at the Buckingham Palace after being appointed as an officer of the OBE in the Queen's honours list for his service to art earlier this year. Interestingly, the Mumbai show will also feature works by his wife and artist Annie Morris. "It's an honour to host the first-ever joint exhibition of the duo. He is one of the most iconic artists of our times," shared gallery director Ashwin Thadani.
